HAD POISON IF ROPE FAILED.

Woman Found Hanging to Door With Paris Green Near Her.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Westboro, Mass., March H .- Mrs. Annie B. Sproui, 41 years old, committed suicide by move even stones. banging to the door knob between the For a long period kitchen and the dining-room at her home. She was found by her hu-band, William C. Sproul, when he went home from his work at night from the Westboro Hat Company's shop. She had fastened one end of a rope to the knob of the door and tled a tight-slipping noose about her throat and threw the rope over the top of the door.

Medical Examiner Charles S. Knight was summoned, and on viewing the body decided that she had been dead at least two hours. Mr. Sproul says that he left her at noon apparently in the best of health and opinits. He had never seen anything in her conduct to suspect that she would be led to attempt to take her life. She was of cheer-ful disposition and rarely sick. Medical Ex-aminer Knight found a dish of parts green mixed in the kitchen, showing she had taken it to make sure of death.

On the table she left a note with the words: "Everything is lovely between William and I. He is the best of husbands, but my nerves have got the better of me, and I have a feeling to take my own life which I can't throw off." Then followed minute directions as to funeral and other matters. The couple had no children.

ST. PATRICK A BAPTIST?

New York Preacher Will Attempt to Show That He Was.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL New York, March 14.-Trying to prove that St. Patrick, Ireland's patron saint, was a Baptist, is the task which the Revcrend Addison Moore, of the Bergen Baptist Church in Jersey City, has set himself to perform to-morrow morning.

"It is a matter of history," says Mr. Moore, "that St. Patrick baptized his cw. verts by immersion, the same as Baptists do. St. Patrick was not a missionary sent to Ireland by the church at Rome. Taking these facts into consideration the Baptists have more right to St. Patrick than the Roman Catholic Church. He was simply canonized by the Roman church." Mr. Moore will touch upon the legend of St. Patrick and his banishment of the makes from Ireland. He also professes to believe that there should be a St. Patrick Baptist Church. The young people's society of the Bergen Baptist Surch will give a rocfable on St. Patrick's Day.

POETRY PAVES A STREET WITH ASPHALT.

peal to the President of Brooklyn Borough.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, March 14.-Brocklyn, terrestrial abode of the muses, furnishes an interesting example of the power of poesy to air with pleadings to the borough authoriair with pleadings to the borough authorities that the rough cobblestone pavement of the street should be replaced by asphalt. They declared that the roadbed was so rocky that the early-morning milk wagons served as aiarm clocks, and ordinary conversation had to be conducied through megaphones.

But all entresty vas futile until Mrs. Harlow R. Browt, who lives at No. 82, was seized with inspiration, and, grasping her trusty typewriter, dashed off the following stanzas to Swanstrom, the borough President:

My dear President Swanstrom: I trust, when you get Those millions for paving. On which your heart's set, You'll tell Mr. Redfield, (Fray do not forget), There's a Hodney street block That isn't paved yet.

A berough official Who serves without pay, ("Mirabile dictu,") Besides down that way.

When crossing that street. One just has to hobble, Because it is paved With ye ancient cobble.

Now please, Mr. President, Although you may smile, Don't read this petition, Then place it on file,

For we of the School boards. By experience stern. Know that is the limbo. Whence there's no return.

The laurel crown of victory now adorns the brow of Mrs. Brown. She has been assured that Rodney street will be repayed with asphalt. In the meantime all Brooklyn has dropped into verse, and hundreds of communications on municipal business, all in rhyme or blank verse, are pouring into the offices of the borough government.

LOVES HER

Although Inheriting $50,000 This Girl Will Remain a Typewriter.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, March 14.-Although Katharine Nause of Mount Vernon is said to be heir Nause of Mount Vernon is said to be heir to almost all of a $50,000 estate left by her grandfather. John Van Steynberg, a miser, of Brocklyn, who was burfed in Cypress Hills Cemetery yesterday, she says she intends to keep her present position as a typewriter in Postmaster Williams's office. Mr. Van Steynberg was 63 years old. Katharine was his favorite granddaughter. in 1902 he lived with her mother. Mrs. Fred Nause, at No. 522 South Eighth avenue, Mount Vernon, and the neighbors say he was eccentric. He had a habit of carrying big rolls of bills around in his clothes. He made his money in his thirty years' connection with the Mott Iron Works. He lived in a single room in a tenement-house on Fulton street, Brocklyn, and pretended he was penniless. Just before he died in St. John's Hospital he begged to be allowed to keep bank books which were found in his coat pockets. Rolls of bills were also hidden about his clothing.
